GOLF:

Solmar Golf Links

The Greg Norman Signature golf course, the destination's next great venue, celebrated its official grand opening in February 2020. Known for employing a 'least-disturbance' approach in his design projects, Norman has created a multi-themed layout that features sweeping ocean views from every hole. Spanning three different ecosystems, the golf course rambles through huge windswept dunes at the start, climbs through a thick cactus forest creased by meandering arroyos in the middle of the round, and returns players to the beach and sea on the back nine.

The 7,210-yard, par-72 layout has five holes on the beach, notably the par-3 third, which parallels the sea and will give players fine views of breaching whales during the winter months. There's also a signature island green at the par-3 17th hole.

With two comfort stations spaced around the course, players will enjoy an all-inclusive experience during the round. A handsome rancho-style clubhouse, featuring an indoor-outdoor restaurant and event lawn, overlooks the fairways and sea.

The Solmar Golf Links' full-service practice facility features a spacious range, a large practice putting green, and dedicated chipping, pitching and sand play areas.
